Rockwell Automation Conflict Minerals Supply Chain Statement

Rockwell Automation is committed to high ethical standards and social responsibility within our supply chain. This includes supporting the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 (Dodd-Frank) as it relates to Conflict Minerals (Section 1502), designed to eliminate the support of illegal, unethical, and inhumane actions in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) region. While we do not purchase tin, tungsten, tantalum, and gold directly, they may exist in the materials and components we buy.

Rockwell Automation's goal is to comply with the requirements of Dodd-Frank. In support of this goal, we expect the same supply chain management, transparency, and practices from our suppliers. We will rely on the Responsible Minerals Initiative's "Conflict Minerals Reporting Template" for data collection, insight, and program management. As a result of these efforts, we are working with our suppliers, to responsibly purchase and source the materials and components we use in our products.

Our suppliers are expected to investigate the source, and chain of custody, of conflict minerals in the products that they provide to Rockwell Automation. In addition, our suppliers are required to demonstrate that they are working with the appropriate care to disclose information obtained as an act of due diligence, to us on request, and to purchase minerals from responsible sources that do not contribute to funding armed groups, or human rights abuses in the DRC region. We will work with our suppliers on a case-by-case basis to meet these very important goals.
